By now, you would have realised that many 'rank and file' workers have been retrenched during this current recession and plenty of PMETs have been 'pink slipped' too. However, have you heard much in the media about Leaders being let go?

Looks like a Non-Leader could put you at risk; you might get passed over for promotion, miss out on special project or be next in line to join that exit queue; perish that thought. The strategy is to take on board a little change now so that you will feel, look, and act like a Leader. No matter what level you are in the enterprise, this workshop will get you to start to move in the appropriate direction.

The speaker will share on some key communication skills that are relevant to leaders. What leadership is? How to project yourself as a leader? And experience how you should hold your conversations as a leader.

Patrick O'Brien is the Managing Director of The Amanuenses Network Pte Ltd, a company delivering soft-skills training solutions that focus on team productivity, and personal effectiveness. He brings a unique blend of coaching, neuro linguistic programming, and improvisation to his workshops, making them highly interactive, engaging, and fun learning experiences.
